

M Guihot & L Bennett
Moses
LexisNexis
Butterworths 2020
PB $88.99

40 THE BULLETIN August 2020

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE, ROBOTS AND THE LAW

Abstract from LexisNexis

Artificial Intelligence, Robots and the Law is a call to students, lawyers, technologists, academics, regulators and others to engage with the issues raised by new developments in these technologies. The authors take a systematic approach to defining the field and the many terms of art that have come to distinguish it. By doing so, they add to the creation of a consistent common language through which all parties can converse.

Theoretically rich, the book engages with socio-technical changes caused by developments in artificial intelligence and robotics, while identifying critical ethical and legal issues. It explains the application of law to new circumstances in areas such as tort, criminal and contract law, in addition to exploring the need for general law reform and technology-specific regulation.